ADDENDUM

Submission Guidelines

Manuscripts are accepted from any individual/institution. Manuscript, with a complete set of figures and tables, should be submitted with a cover letter. The corresponding author(s) should indicate in a cover letter, namely:

- (1) the manuscript is being submitted for consideration publication in JCISE;
- (2) a manuscript with substantially the same content has not been submitted or published elsewhere;
- (3) all the authors have made contributions to the study described in the manuscript and are responsible for its content; and
- (4) all authors have approved the manuscript.

Only manuscripts written in English are accepted. Each manuscript will be peer reviewed by two or more referees for its acceptability in terms of scientific quality and originality. The journal reserves the privilege of returning the manuscript to the author for revision to make it suitable for publication in the journal.

Manuscripts should be written concisely and typed on one side of white paper (A4 size), with margins of at least 2.5 cm. Type manuscripts double-spaced throughout, including references, tables, figure legends and footnotes. All pages must be numbered consecutively.

Original research reports (8,000-10,000 words) may be divided into the following sections; Title page, including the title, the author(s) and affiliation(s), abstract, introduction, literature review, research questions, Objectives, materials and methods, results, discussion, acknowledgments, and references.

A. Title page: The title should contain the fewest words that adequately describe the work. The authors' names should be typed in full. The department and institution where the investigation was made, including the complete postal address, should be named. The telephone number, fax number, and e-mail address (if available) of the corresponding author should be indicated.

B. Abstract: Manuscripts of original papers must begin with a structured abstract of not more than 300 words. It should state the background and purposes of the study; materials and methods (basic procedures on selection of study participants; observational and analytical methods); results (main findings); and conclusion(s).

C. Keywords: Below the abstract, 3 to 5 key words or short phrases that should be sufficient to describe the content of the text should be provided.

D. Introduction: The introduction outlines the purpose, rationale, scope and methods of the investigation and its relations to other work in the same field.

E. Research Question(s) should be clearly defined as it determines the methodology, review of literature and leads different stages of inquiry, analysis, and thesis writing.

F. Literature Review should be clear and concise reflecting the current scholarly debates in the field including conceptual and theoretical frameworks

- G. Materials and Methods: Author(s) are expected to clearly describe how the study was conducted showing the tools, process and procedures are used in the collection and analysis of data. This section may also contain the limitations of the study.
- H. Results: author(s) are expected to present their key findings in the form of text, tables, and illustrations.
- I. Discussion: section should be in conformity with the research questions and objectives of the study. Authors are encouraged to discuss the future implications of the study and its limitations.
- J. Acknowledgements: One or more statement(s) should specify:
- (a) contributions that need acknowledging but do not justify authorship, such as general support by a departmental chairman;
 - (b) acknowledgements of technical help;
 - (c) acknowledgements of financial and material support, specifying the nature of support; and
 - (d) Financial or other relationships that may pose a conflict of interest.
- K. Tables and figures: All tabular materials, flow charts, etc. should be typed on separate pages of the same size as the text and consecutively numbered with the reference in the main text. Headings of the tables and figures should be concise, clearly present the subject matter.
- L. Abbreviations and symbols: Only standard abbreviations should be used.
- M. References: References should be cited by number in parentheses in the text in order of their appearance and listed in numerical order at the end of the manuscript. References to journals and books should be written in APA 6 style as in the following examples:
